

Dr. Beth Heick is a wound care clinician and educator with nineteen years of experience as a Certified Wound Specialist. She has worked in three wound care specialty centers and has taught classes in the wound care curriculum at Northern Arizona University, Franklin Pierce University, and the A.T. Still University Post-Professional DPT program. She received her degree in physical therapy from Northern Arizona University and her DPT from A.T. Still University.

Dr. Heick's presentation "It's Only a Flesh Wound" will focus on strategies to enhance wound healing in the traditional outpatient clinic without specialty materials, particularly when the wound is not the primary focus of treatment.
